

CRED: Call for Contributions

Introduction

The Centre for Race, Education and Decoloniality invites you to share perspectives on the impact of COVID-19 and the response to the pandemic, on Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic people and communities. Creative work (poems, fiction, essays, artwork, raps etc.) as well as conventional academic papers or thought pieces are welcome. We are interested in contributions from students, researchers, teachers, activists, creatives, educators and interested stakeholders whose work connects to:

Schools and teaching | Education Studies | Critical Race and Ethnic Studies | Sociology | Human Geography | Community Studies

The broader themes of this issue include:

Education | Teaching Practice | Anti-racist curriculum | Pedagogy | Intersectionality

Contributors to this Working Papers series will also automatically become members of CRED and will be emailed updates and invitations to a range of events.

Submission Guidelines

-Submissions should be around 1500 words but no more than 4000 words

-These should be emailed to CRED@leedsbeckett.ac.uk as Word documents by Friday 3rd
